

JOANNA HAN

Intern

joanna.han@bodhiresearchgroup.com

Joanna Han holds a high school diploma from the University of Toronto Schools, and has aspirations in the fields of business, economics, and psychology. She is a rising undergraduate student in the Rotman Commerce program at the University of Toronto and strives to gain experience in the industry at the Bodhi Research Group during her gap year before beginning her studies.

A leader in high school, Joanna was a UTS Prefect and Wellness Committee executive where she actively organized and led school-wide events highlighting community and mental health awareness. Through this work, she has been awarded the Beverley Matthews Award for Prefects and the Dr. T.M. Porter Memorial Scholarship For Leadership. She is also a strong social justice advocate and worked alongside the UTS Asian Focus Group to develop new resources and events on Anti-Asian racism and its history in Canada.

Joanna has also been a co-author and research assistant to Professor Claire Tsai of the University of Toronto to analyze themes of behavioural economics and help conduct research. Joanna has published a paper titled "Wellness in the Age of COVID-19: The Power of Social Networks" in the Winter 2021 issue of Rotman Management magazine.

Returning as a full-time intern at the Bodhi Research Group from her previous summer internship in 2020, Joanna is excited to take on roles within the marketing and financial research sectors of the company.

In her free time, Joanna enjoys cooking, fashion, and learning about different types of tea.
