

MATTHEW TAMBELLINI

Operational Advisor
Bodhi Research Group

Speaker

Matthew Tambellini was most recently COO of Stamina Capital Management, a long/short equity and opportunistic credit hedge fund based in New York. Matt joined Stamina prior to its launch, and assisted with establishing all non-investment aspects of the fund. These responsibilities included diligencing/negotiating all service provider arrangements, forming Stamina Cayman master/feeder structure, establishing various human resources policies and managing the marketing outreach and investor due diligence processes. Prior to joining Stamina, he was a managing director with Blackstone Alternative Asset Management.

In his 11 years at BAAM, he worked in various capacities including operational due diligence, investor onboarding, acquisition diligence on GP targets and human capital matters. He began his career in Ernst & Young's audit and fraud investigation departments.

He received his B.A. from Lafayette College where he double majored in Economics and English. He also earned a Masters in Accounting from the University of Virginia. Matt played NCAA Division 1 baseball at Lafayette, where he was a pitcher, first baseman and team Captain. He regularly competes in endurance athletic events, primarily focusing on iron and half-iron distance triathlons.
